Asbestos Enforcement Cases (Excluding Schools) Going Back Approximately 5 Years

Last Updated Friday, February 24, 2012

If you have questions on any of these cases, please call the Asbestos Compliance Assistance Group at 303-692-3100 or email at asbestos@state.co.us

As you read this listing, please keep in mind that a "Pending" listing in the case finding column means that some problems were found during our inspection, an enforcement case was opened and the Division is conducting an investigation. Usually a Notice of Violation (NOV) letter is then issued to the entity listed in the contractor column when the Air Pollution Control Division has reason to suspect that one or more violations of Regulation No. 8, Part B, may have occurred. When a NOV letter is issued the Division conducts a NOV conference, at which time the Division allows the contractor to submit evidence and present testimony regarding the alleged violations. This enables the Division to determine if, in fact, the alleged violations did take place.

At the conclusion of the NOV conference, the Division reviews the testimony and evidence and typically a determination is made as to whether or not the violations occurred and, if so, assesses a penalty. The contractor has 30 days in which to appeal the Division's determination.

While some NOV conferences have resulted in the assessment of penalties, others have resulted in the dismissal of all the alleged violations. The NOV conference is merely one of several information-gathering tools used by the Division. Additional evidence may also be gathered after the NOV conference, if circumstances warrant it.

Therefore, the listing of "Pending" should not be construed as evidence of any wrongdoing on the part of the entity listed.
